Biennial Report

OF THE

Commissioner of State Taxes

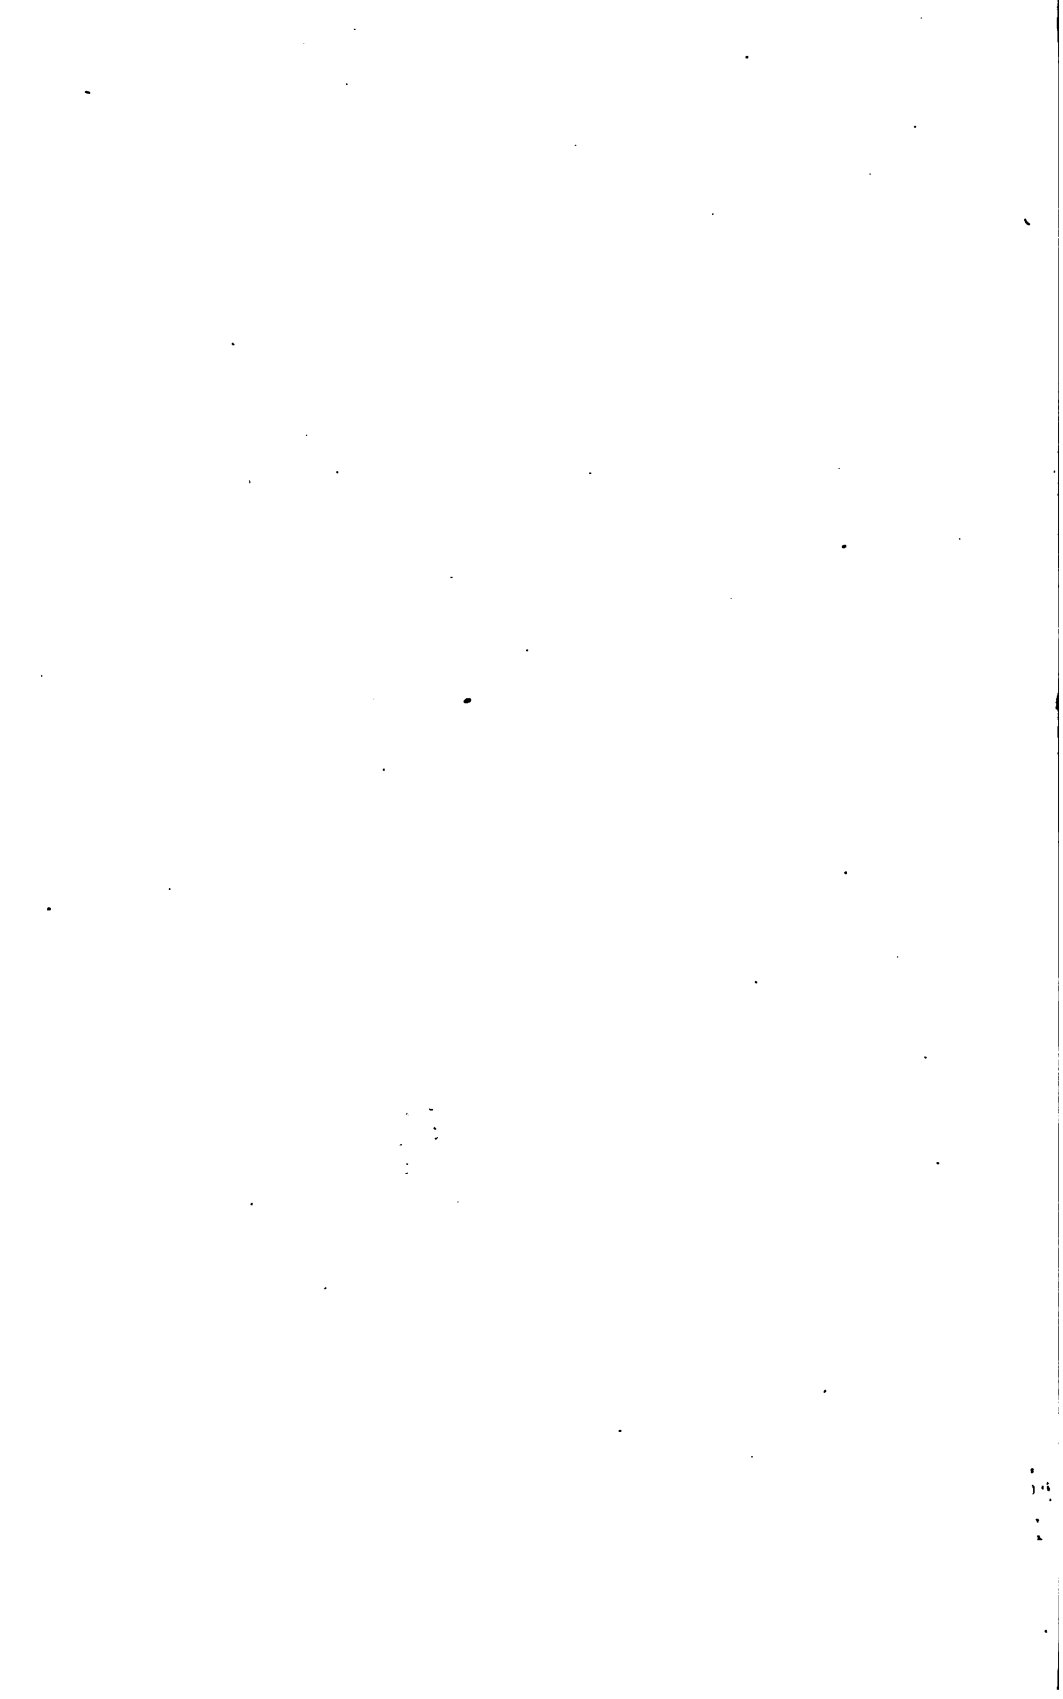

OF THE

State of Vermont

FOR THE TERM ENDING

June 30, 1908

THE TUTTLE COMPANY
PUBLISHERS VT. PUBLIC DOCUMENTS
Rutland, Vermont
1908

Report

FOR THE BIENNIAL TERM ENDING JUNE 30, 1908.

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER OF STATE TAXES.

BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

To the General Assembly of the State of Vermont:

During the biennial term covered by this report, the state's income from corporation and collateral inheritance taxes has materially increased,—the gain being much greater than in former terms as appears by the following summaries:

	Total taxes.	Excess over prior term.
1899-1900	$881,622 36	$98,147 54
1901-1902	1,051,017 64	169,395 28
1903-1904	1,205,517 76	154,500 12
1905-1906	1,363,752 79	158,225 03
1907-1908	1,697,886 77	334,133 98

The total corporation and collateral inheritance taxes collected during the fiscal years ending June 30, 1899 and 1900 amounted to $415,357.35 and $466,265.01 respectively, while such taxes collected during the fiscal years ending June 30, 1907 and 1908 amounted to $766,734.35 and $931,143.42 respectively,—the amount for the last fiscal year being approximately fifty thousand dollars in excess of the amount collected during the two years composing the biennial term ending June 30, 1900, and substantially twice as much as that collected during the fiscal year ending on the last named date.

REVIEW OF LEGISLATION SINCE 1900 AFFECTING INCREASED REVENUE.

The rates of taxation for insurance companies, savings banks, trust companies, and savings bank and trust companies, remain the same as in 1900.

The basis upon which insurance companies doing business in this state are assessed has not been materially changed.

In 1902 the law exempting from local taxation individual deposits aggregating fifteen hundred dollars in the aforesaid banks, and requiring such banks to pay a tax thereon, was amended by substituting two thousand dollars in lieu of fifteen hundred dollars. In 1906 the law was further amended by exempting from local taxation all individual deposits in such banks not exceeding two thousand dollars in each bank, and requiring such banks to pay the state tax on all such deposits not exceeding two thousand dollars each.

The rate of taxation on railroads has been increased,—the tax based upon appraisal having been in 1904 raised from seven to ten dollars per thousand; and the so-called optional tax on gross earnings having been in 1906 changed from two and one-half per cent thereof to a so-called graduated tax of two and one-half per cent on the first two thousand dollars per mile per year of such earnings; two and three-fourths per cent of the next five hundred dollars per mile per year; and thence advancing one-fourth of one per cent. for each additional five hundred dollars per mile per year up to and including four per cent. Under the last named method, such part of the gross earnings as exceeds four thousand five hundred dollars per mile per year is subject to the four per cent rate.

The so-called optional tax on gross earnings of steamboat and transportation companies was in 1902 raised from two to two and one-half per cent; and the tax based upon appraisal was in 1904 raised from seven to ten dollars per thousand. The tax on sleeping and parlor cars was in 1904 materially increased.

The tax on express companies was in 1904 changed from four per cent of the gross receipts from business done wholly within this state, to eight dollars per mile for every mile of railroad located within this state over which such companies transported property for hire; and in 1906 the law was further amended to read as follows:—

“At the rate of eight dollars for every mile of the routes or lines located wholly within this state upon or over which such corporation * * * transports * * * express matter for hire between a point in this state and another point herein.”

The tax of telegraph companies based upon mileage of poles and lines remains unchanged; but the so-called optional tax based upon gross earnings was in 1902 increased,—the old rate being three per cent on all business done wholly within the state, while the new rate is three per cent of the entire gross earnings collected within the state on account of telegraphic messages or communications sent or received herein.

Previous to the year 1902, the tax of telephone companies had been three per cent of the entire gross earnings derived from business done wholly within this state. In the last named year, the law was amended fixing the tax at the rate of forty cents for each transmitter and thirty cents per mile for all telephone wires used, owned, maintained or operated, and giving the telephone company the option to pay, in lieu of the foregoing tax, three per cent of the entire gross receipts from business done wholly within this state. In 1904 the law was further amended, changing the so-called optional tax to three per cent of the entire gross earnings collected within this state on account of telephonic messages or communications sent or received herein.

Prior to 1902 only corporations having capital stock were called upon to pay the annual license tax. For the fiscal year beginning February 1, 1902, all mutual insurance companies were required to pay and did pay such tax. The General Assembly in that year amended the law in such manner as to require all private corporations, except cemetery associations and corporations organized solely for charitable, religious or educational purposes, to pay such tax. Under the provisions of section 753 of the Public Statutes, all corporations and joint stock associations engaged in any commercial, manufacturing or other business carried on in whole or part upon the mutual or co-operative plan, or which exercise corporate functions in this state, are now required to pay the annual license tax.

The original collateral inheritance tax law enacted in 1896, imposed a tax of five per cent upon all legacies and distributive shares passing from decedents, whose net estate, after the payment of debts and administration expenses, exceeded two thousand dollars. In 1904 the legislature imposed a tax of five per cent upon all legacies and distributive shares passing to collateral heirs and non-relatives, irrespective of the size of the estate; and also imposed a like transfer tax on all bank deposits, shares of stock and other property within this state belonging to non-resident decedents at the time of their decease.

In 1906 the General Assembly imposed a tax of seven dollars per thousand upon all interest bearing deposits held by national banks, whereon the rate exceeds two per cent per annum. National bank deposits constitute an entirely new subject of state taxation in this state, and so far as the undersigned is aware, in this country.

ARREARS.

The statute imposing the annual license tax upon Vermont corporations was enacted in 1890, and the first tax thereunder became due in February, 1891. All corporations chartered under the laws of this state that had not earlier paid the annual license tax for the years 1891 to 1906 inclusive, were by the laws of 1904 required to pay the same on or before April 1, 1906, or forfeit their charters. During that biennial term all such corporations retaining their corporate existence paid such taxes. The arrears derived from these corporations during the biennial term covered by this report were paid by those whose corporate existence has been reinstated by decree of court or act of the General Assembly.

In 1894 the statute was so amended as to require foreign corporations doing business in Vermont to pay the annual license tax, and the first taxes due therefrom were payable in February, 1895. During the biennial term covered by this report, this department has endeavored to compel all foreign corporations doing business in this state and liable thereto, to pay the annual license tax, unless earlier paid, for the years 1895 to 1908 inclusive, thereby placing foreign corporations upon the same plane as Vermont corporations. Arrears of the character above mentioned collected in the last named term aggregated the sum of $9,179.56.

The arrears due from corporations on account of taxes other than the annual license tax and collected by this department during the last named term, amount to approximately $25,047.49, the total arrears of both classes above mentioned being $34,227.05.

At the present time there are no substantial sums due from corporations on account of taxes in arrears, and in the future no considerable amounts can be realized therefrom.

SAVINGS BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES.

Since the first day of January, 1900, the tax paid by savings banks, trust companies, and savings bank and trust companies has materially increased,—the total taxes paid by the last named corporations in 1900, being $252,691.49, and for the year 1907, $402,479.76. The average deposits for the six months ending June 30, 1900, were $38,410,867.94, and the average deposits for the six months ending December 31, 1907, were $60,412,041.65,—an increase of $22,001,173.71. For the first named six months taxes were paid to the state on deposits averaging $35,502,566.33, and for the last named six months on $59,135,871.39,—the increase in taxable deposits being $23,633,305.06. During the same period the amount of personal property set in the grand list increased from $40,884,198.00 to

$43,369,964.00; and the amount of personal property exempted from taxation on account of debts owing increased from $27,-177,289.00 to $31,772,544.00,—the last two items of increase aggregating $7,081,021.00. (See schedule pages, 30, 131, 132.)

In the opinion of the undersigned these facts fully justify the policy of the General Assembly in the enactment of statutes permitting depositors to have increased deposits in these institutions exempt from local taxation.

If the law should be further amended to allow depositors to place on deposit in any institution as much as such institution would accept, it would not, in the opinion of the undersigned, decrease the amount of personal property set in the grand list.

NATIONAL BANKS.

Prior to the last session of the General Assembly no state tax had been imposed upon interest bearing deposits in national banks. These deposits were taxed, if at all, by reason of being reported in the inventories of the individual depositors returned to the listers in the several towns. During the first six months beginning with April 1, 1907, in which such deposits were subject to the state tax, the average amount thereof was $5,651,-772.84 and for the six months beginning with October 1, 1907, the average amount was $6,008,526.94.

The fact that approximately six millions of cash in national banks in this state were thus exempted from local taxation and made subject to a state tax would lead most people to conclude that if the same had therefore been included in the local grand list made up in April, 1906, there would have been an appreciable falling off in the grand list of 1907. On the other hand the amount of personal property was increased from $42,955,-532.00 in 1906 to $44,138,368.00 in 1907, showing that no substantial part of the deposits in national banks had theretofore been taxed locally.

All national banks in this state having interest bearing deposits,—thirty-three in number—have filed stipulations agreeing to pay the tax of seven dollars per thousand upon the average amount of such deposits subject to taxation. These banks have met the requirements of this department in making returns and paying the tax, and their attitude toward the law enacted in 1906 has been of the most satisfactory character. In the future the state will doubtless derive increased revenue from this source of taxation without depreciating to any appreciable extent the amount of personal property set in the grand list.

I would therefore recommend that the law taxing interest bearing deposits in national banks remain unchanged except that the commissioner of state taxes be empowered to issue rebate certificates for all overpayments; and that the law be amended to allow banks to file stipulations which shall continue in force until the same shall be revoked in writing by the signer thereof. An amendment of this character would relieve the national banks from filing semi-annual stipulations, and the tax department from issuing semi-annual certificates, as now required by the law.

RAILROAD APPRAISAL.

The biennial appraisal of railroads made in December, 1906, is shown in comparison with similar appraisals made in 1902 and 1904 in the schedule appearing on pages 42-3 of this report. Appeals from the appraisal made by the undersigned were taken by the Brattleboro Street Railroad Company, the Springfield Electric Railway Company and the Rutland Railway Light & Power Company, and thereupon the State Treasurer in behalf of the state also appealed. The last named company withdrew its appeal before hearing, and the State Treasurer thereupon withdrew his appeal.

Hearings were had before the board of appeals, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State and Auditor of Accounts. This board reduced the valuation of the Brattleboro Street Railroad Company from sixty-four thousand nine hundred and fifty dollars to fifty thousand thousand dollars, and increased the appraisal of the Springfield Electric Railway Company from one hundred thousand dollars to one hundred twelve thousand five hundred dollars.

RAILROAD TAXES.

As shown by the schedules hereto appended, pages 38-9, the taxes paid by railroads have increased under the so-called graduated optional tax of 1906. All of the corporations save the Central Vermont Railway Company, the Rutland Railroad Company and the Delaware & Hudson Company have complied with the rulings of this department touching the method of computation and have paid all taxes due therefrom prior to June 30, 1908. The tax of the Central Vermont Railway Company for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1907, as computed by this department amounted to $76,635.59. The amount paid thereon was $56,128.95. For the same period the tax of the Rutland Railroad Company as thus computed was $63,894.16, and the amount paid thereon was $54,401.49; and for the same period the tax of the Delaware & Hudson Company was $4,049.92, upon which it paid prior to June 30, 1908, $3,612.71.

The refusal of the Central Vermont Railway Company and the Rutland Railroad Company to pay the taxes upon the same basis as all other railroads availing themselves of this option was reported to the Attorney-General, and suits to recover the difference between the amounts so paid and the tax based upon appraisal were brought by him returnable to the August Term, 1908, of Grand Isle County Court.

No legal proceedings have been instituted against the Delaware & Hudson Company owing to the fact that it has not refused to make its returns and pay its taxes as required by this department.

The statute permitting the graduated optional payment reads in part as follows:—

“For each fiscal year * * * a corporation or person owning or operating a railroad * * * may in lieu of the tax assessed in the preceding section (one per cent tax on appraisal) pay two and one-half per cent of such part of the entire gross earnings derived from all sources as does not exceed two thousand dollars per mile of the roadbed located within this state.

At the time the Central Vermont Railway Company refused to pay the so-called optional tax as computed by this department, it contended that the term “roadbed” should be construed to include all of its double, side and spur tracks as well as its main line track; that while it has 297.4 miles of railroad in Vermont it has 410.9 miles of “roadbed” because it has 113.5 miles of double, side and spur tracks; and that by computing its graduated tax on gross earnings upon the basis of 410.9 instead of 297.4 miles its tax would be only $56,128.95 instead of $76,635.59, the amount claimed by the state using 297.4 as the mileage of roadbed. In other words, the last named company claims that for all the distance between its terminals, it has at least one roadbed, and that for such portion of the distance as there are side or double tracks it has two or more roadbeds, depending upon the number of sidings and double tracks. This company also computed its tax according to the method employed by the company next hereinafter named.

The Rutland Railroad Company claimed the right to compute the so-called graduated tax by taking two and one-half per cent of two thousand dollars per mile for each six months, and thence increasing the rate one-fourth of one per cent for each five hundred dollars per mile per six months; in other words this road claimed the right to pay two and one-half per cent of so much of its gross earnings per mile per year as does not exceed four thousand dollars instead of two thousand dollars per mile per year.

The sum demanded by this department of the Central Vermont Railway Company as its so-called graduated optional tax for the year 1907, amounts to only $8.40 per thousand of its appraised value, or 84 cents on the dollar computed as grand list. The sum thus demanded of the Rutland Railroad Company amounts to only $8.31 per thousand of its appraised value, or 83.1 cents on the dollar computed as grand list. The average rate of taxation throughout the state is substantially twice as great.

RAILROAD TAX AMENDMENTS.

The legislative committees having in charge the bill enacted into law in 1906, permitting railroads to pay the so-called graduated optional tax in lieu of the tax on appraisal, intended to report a measure that would require the payment of such optional tax computed according to the methods employed by this department as hereinbefore set forth.

Schedules showing such methods and the probable increase in taxes resulting therefrom were prepared by the undersigned for the use of the committees, and were prior to the passage of the law, discussed at length by the auditor of one of these defendant companies,—the contention then being that the tax proposed would be considerably in excess of the amount computed by the undersigned.

It was manifestly the intent of the General Assembly in 1906 to require railroads to pay a so-called optional tax more nearly approaching the one per cent tax on appraisal than they had theretofore paid. The statute should be amended in such manner as to afford no room for discussion as to the methods of computation; and I would therefore respectfully submit for consideration that it be amended permitting railroads to pay for each six months, in lieu of the tax based upon appraisal, two and one-half per cent of the entire earnings derived from all sources during such period as does not exceed one thousand dollars per mile of the main line thereof computed as single track; and an additional one-fourth of one per cent for each additional two hundred and fifty dollars per mile for such period up to and including three and three-fourths per cent; and four per cent on such part of the gross earnings for such last named period as exceeds $2,250.00 per mile.

INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Under section 742 of the Public Statutes a Vermont life insurance company is required to pay a tax of one per cent upon its surplus. In the opinion of the undersigned, fire, fidelity and accident insurance companies, chartered under the laws of this state, should be subject to a like tax.

EXPRESS COMPANIES.

All taxes due to the state from the American and National Express Companies including those in dispute at the time of making the last biennial report, have been adjusted by a compromise effected by the Attorney-General with the approval of his Excellency the Governor, the Auditor of Accounts and the undersigned. It was claimed in behalf of the express companies that the law of 1904 was unconstitutional and therefore void; and that no tax was thereby lawfully imposed upon such companies. This contention applied to the taxes for the years ending June 30, 1905 and 1906. The amount received from the American Express Company for these two years was $8,790, and the amount received from the National Express Company was $1,210. The foregoing compromise also included the taxes for years ending June 30, 1907 and 1908,—each of these companies agreeing to pay the tax of eight dollars per mile for each of said last named years.

It is claimed on the part of these companies that the present statute imposes a higher tax upon them than is exacted of other public service companies under our law. Heretofore these companies have withheld adequate data upon which to make comparison with other public service corporations, and the tax of eight dollars per mile was arbitrarily fixed owing to such lack of data.

It has been the settled policy of this department and of the legislature, so far as the undersigned has been able to judge, to require all public service corporations to pay their just proportion of the amount to be raised by taxation, and no more. It is hoped that these companies at the coming session of the General Assembly will furnish to the proper committees and officials, the information necessary to enable them to recommend a rate of taxation which will require express companies to contribute only their just proportion of taxes to the support of our state government, whose protection they will continue to enjoy.

DIRECT INHERITANCE TAXES.

My last biennial report contained the following: —

“As the law now stands upon our statute books no tax is required of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, adopted child, lineal descendant of an adopted child, the wife or widow of a son or the husband of a daughter of the decedent; in other words the nearest relatives to the decedent subject to the tax are the brothers and the sisters. In some of the states the direct heirs are required to pay an inheritance tax on bequests and distributive shares exceeding a certain specified amount.

The law as it now stands reaches comparatively few large estates. A very large majority of the estates pass by will or the law of descent to the direct heirs above enumerated and consequently the state derives no inheritance tax therefrom. Direct heirs receiving large bequests or distributive shares may better afford to pay a graduated tax to the state depending upon the size of the bequest or distributive share than can many of the collateral heirs. I therefore recommend to the consideration of the General Assembly the question of a graduated tax upon bequests and distributive shares passing to direct heirs when the bequest or distributive share equals or exceeds certain specified amounts. By requiring an inheritance tax on such bequests and shares the state will derive added income from large estates from which none can be derived under the present law, with little if any serious inconvenience to the persons paying the same."

The special commission on taxation deals with the same subject and contains a summary of the statute enacted in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts since the submission of my last report. The report of the last named commission touching a direct inheritance tax should, in the opinion of the undersigned, receive the careful consideration of the General Assembly.

CORPORATIONS FORMED UNDER GENERAL LAW.

In the last biennial report, the undersigned called attention to the law regulating the formation of corporations by voluntary association. The General Assembly of 1906 amended the law permitting corporations to be formed by voluntary association for the purpose of holding real estate and carrying on telephone and telegraph business. Theretofore such corporations could not be formed by voluntary association.

Since the modification of the law in the respect above mentioned, several telephone companies, and corporations for holding and dealing in real estate, have been formed thereunder—the state receiving the charter fees therefrom which would otherwise have been paid other states. It is self evident that every corporation formed under Vermont laws increases its revenue and becomes subject to all of our general laws relating to its control and supervision.

CORPORATIONS ORGANIZED UNDER LAWS OF OTHER STATES.

Of late there has been a noticeable disposition on the part of investors without the state, and to quite an extent within the state, to organize corporations designed to operate in Vermont under the laws of Maine, because of the more liberal provisions in that state regulating the liability of stockholders and directors. The charter fee is thereby lost to the state of Vermont and the corporation thus organized begins doing business in Vermont freed from the liability of stockholders and directors imposed by the Vermont law, with no resulting benefits to our state nor any of its citizens, save those who became incorporators in the new corporation.

In my last biennial report it was suggested that our law touching the liability of directors and stockholders in Vermont corporations formed by voluntary association should be somewhat less stringent and more in accord with those of other states. It is believed that the law imposing upon directors personal liability for all indebtedness exceeding in amount two-thirds of the capital stock is largely responsible for the present state of affairs. The statute of Maine imposes no such liability and therefore makes its laws attractive to incorporators residing in Vermont.

STATUTORY LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS.

The first law regulating the organization of private corporations by voluntary association was enacted in 1853. At that time corporations formed by voluntary association were comparatively few and were looked upon with more disfavor than at the present time. Section 3 of No. 71 of the Acts of 1853, provides among other things, "that no debts shall at any time be contracted by such corporation exceeding in amount two-thirds of the capital stock of such corporation actually paid in; and any director of such corporation, assenting to the creation of such indebtedness, shall be held personally liable for the amount of such excess."

The statute now in force is section 4307 of the Public Statutes which reads in part as follows:—

"No debts shall be contracted by the corporation exceeding in amount two-thirds of the capital stock actually paid in; and a director assenting to the creation of an indebtedness exceeding such amount shall be personally liable for the excess."

Under our statute above quoted a private corporation having a capital stock of fifty thousand dollars fully subscribed and paid in, cannot without legislative assent incur indebtedness in excess of $33,333.33, without making all directors consenting thereto personally liable therefor in an action under our statute, notwithstanding the corporation may at the time of the creation thereof own property far exceeding the par value of its capital stock and the amount of its indebtedness. This is also true if the creditor at the time of giving credit knew that the corporation was insolvent. Such arbitrary rules do not apply to the individual.

A law imposing upon the creditor the responsibility of determining whether or not he will extend credit to a corporation in the absence of fraud or deceit would not be unreasonable in its provisions, and would work no hardship upon the creditor beyond that which he ordinarily assumes in extending credit to individuals, and corporations organized under the laws of other states.

We have no statute which attempts to impose liability upon foreign corporations or their officials on account of indebtedness incurred in excess of assets or full paid capital stock.

We have no law prohibiting the individual from procuring credit in excess of two-thirds of his property, and a law subjecting him to a body action for all debts incurred by him in excess thereof would not seem reasonable in the light of modern methods of extending credit.

Our laws therefore discriminate against a Vermont corporation in favor of individuals and foreign corporations, and thereby deprive this state of the income and prestige which it might and would otherwise enjoy.

I would therefore respectfully submit for consideration the suggestion, that a law be framed eliminating the liability of directors on account of the creation of indebtedness in excess of two-thirds of the paid-in capital stock; permitting directors and other officers of Vermont corporations, for the purpose of obtaining or extending credit, to make sworn statements setting forth the nature and amount of their assets, their secured and unsecured liabilities; and other pertinent facts touching the affairs of corporations and imposing liability upon directors for any fraud or deception touching the financial condition of corporations.

Under such a law the state would receive at least a portion of the charter fees which otherwise would naturally be paid to another state, and the creditor would be deprived of no protection that would inure to his benefit when dealing with foreign corporations doing business in this state.

NUMBER OF INCORPORATORS.

Prior to 1892 the laws of this state permitted three or more persons by voluntary association to form a corporation under the general law by filing articles of association. In the last named year the law was amended by increasing the number from three to five,—the result being that oft times there are at least two “dummy” incorporators who sign the articles of association simply to make up the quota of five required by the statute. By reducing the number of incorporators to three, no public interest would be jeopardized, and our laws regulating incorporation by voluntary association would be made more attractive to our citizens in this regard.

LITIGATION.

During the biennial term there has been very little litigation involving the validity or enforcement of corporation and collateral inheritance taxes. The appeal taken by the undersigned from the decree of the probate court for the district of Hartford fixing the collateral inheritance tax in the estate of Alice Howard was heard at the special session of the supreme court held at Brattleboro in November, 1907. This case involved the validity of section eighty-one of number thirty of the Acts of 1906, now section nine hundred of the Public Statutes. The decision was in favor of the state and establishes the validity of the statute imposing an inheritance tax upon all legacies passing to collateral heirs and non-relatives from the estates of decedents who deceased prior to the enactment of said last named act, but whose estates had not theretofore been settled and distributed. Two other cases involving the same question were pending at that time, one of which has since been adjusted.

The undersigned appealed from the decree of the probate court for the district of Fair Haven fixing the amount of collateral inheritance tax due from the estate of Nancy M. Meadon. This case is now pending in supreme court and involves the validity of section three and four of number thirty of the Acts of 1906 (sections 824 and 825 P. S.)

The suits against the Rutland Railroad Company and the Central Vermont Railway Company to recover balances claimed by this department are hereinbefore referred to.

For a further and more detailed report of the various litigations involving taxes collectible by this department reference is had to the report of the Attorney-General.

CORPORATIONS REINSTATED.

At the September term 1907 of the Court of Chancery in Orleans County, the Clyde River Paper Company was by decree reinstated as a corporation upon petition of Frederick A. Smith of Medford, Mass., a shareholder therein. The charter of this corporation was revoked April 1, 1906, for non-payment of the annual license tax for the years, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904 and 1905, then in arrears,—the corporation having paid its 1906 annual license tax.

The petition and answer in this case clearly disclosed that the corporation did not intend to forfeit its charter, and that its failure to pay the taxes in arrears was due to the fact that notices sent from this department did not reach Mr. Smith who was then living in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and who then had charge of the corporate affairs of the company. This is the only instance where resort has been had to the courts to reinstate the corporate existence of any corporation whose charter has been revoked for non-payment of the annual license tax.

In only four instances has the legislature reinstated corporations whose charters were thus forfeited, namely:

Danville Creamery Association,
Hartland Falls Company,
Orville Marble Company,
Walden Creamery Company.

SCHEDULES.

In order to further carry out the methods adopted in preceding reports made by the undersigned, I have the honor to herewith submit similar schedules covering this biennial term.

Such schedules disclose the increase of taxable deposits in our state banking institutions during a period of eight years; a like increase in the amount of personal property set in the grand list; and for a like period the increased amount of personal property exempted from local taxation on account of debts owed by the individual taxpayers.

Upon consideration of these results it cannot be successfully denied that state and national banks in Vermont are attractive depositories for our own people and those of nearby states; that whenever the state by its legislation has enlarged the amount of bank deposits exempt from local taxation, the amount of such deposits has been increased without decreasing to any appreciable extent the amount of personal property set in the grand list; and that in addition to affording increased state revenue without depleting that of towns, cities and villages, the amount of Vermont money unprofitably or disasterously invested elsewhere must be materially lessened.

Our farmers, wage earners, small investors, business and professional men are constantly making these deposits because their value is never in question, and can be realized without discount or delay.

The retention of the present laws relating to state taxation of bank deposits should remain intact.
